

Resolved: An unjust government is better than no government at all.

Resolved: That decisions of the U.S. Supreme Court in criminal cases ought to reflect the values of the American people.

Resolved: A Parliamentary system of government would better fulfill the values underlying the American Constitution.

Resolved: When they are in conflict, the right to a free press is a higher priority than the right to a fair trial.

1987-1988

Resolved: That the protection of public safety justifies random, mandatory drug testing throughout society.

Resolved: That the protection of society's health interests through broad based mandatory testing for AIDS ought to be more important than personal privacy rights.

Resolved: That when they are in conflict, the principle of privileged communication ought to be subordinate to the maintenance of Law and Order.

Resolved: That violent revolution is a just response to oppression.

1988-1989

Resolved: That the individual ought to value the sanctity of life above the quality of life.

Resolved: That affirmative action programs to remedy the effects of discrimination are justified.

Resolved: That limitations upon the content of student publications by secondary school administrators are justified.

Resolved: That the public's right to know ought to be valued above U.S. National Security interests.

Resolved: That the American criminal justice system ought to place a higher priority on retribution than on rehabilitation.

1989-1990

Resolved: That all United States citizens ought to perform a period of national service.

Resolved: That communities in the United States ought to have the right to suppress pornography.

Resolved: That development of natural resources ought to be valued above protection of the environment.

Resolved: That individual obedience to law plays a greater role in maintaining ethical public service than does individual obedience to conscience.

1990-1991

Resolved: That competition is superior to cooperation as a means of achieving excellence.

Resolved: That government limits on the individual's right to bear arms in the United States are justified.